American Genealogical-Biographical Index (AGBI):
Millions of records of individuals are indexed in these volumes. Indexed records include family and local histories, the Boston Transcript, the 1790 U.S. census, and published Revolutionary War records.

Source Category Description:(Preliminary: Genealogies)
When conducting a preliminary survey at the outset of researching a surname line, the compiled published family histories put together by other genealogists are searched. These histories are usually found in large genealogy collections such as the Library of Congress, the Family History Library (FHL) as indicated in the FHL Catalog, the New York Public Library and similar public libraries, or large genealogical society collections such as the New English Historic and Genealogical Library (NEHGS) or the DAR Library, or as found in microform collections in other repositories.
