PREVIEW OF WINDOWS 10 "CREATORS UPDATE"

Microsoft Windows Insider
Program
Bill James, APCUG Region 8
Advisor

CREATORS UPI Windows 10

The Windows “Creators Update” will be the next free update to Windows 10. It follows the “Anniversary Release” version 1607 released in July, 2016

The “Creators Update release is planned for early 2017 as per Microsoft’s announcement. It has also been reported that it may be known as Version 1703, hinting a March release for all PCs running Windows 10 Anniversary update

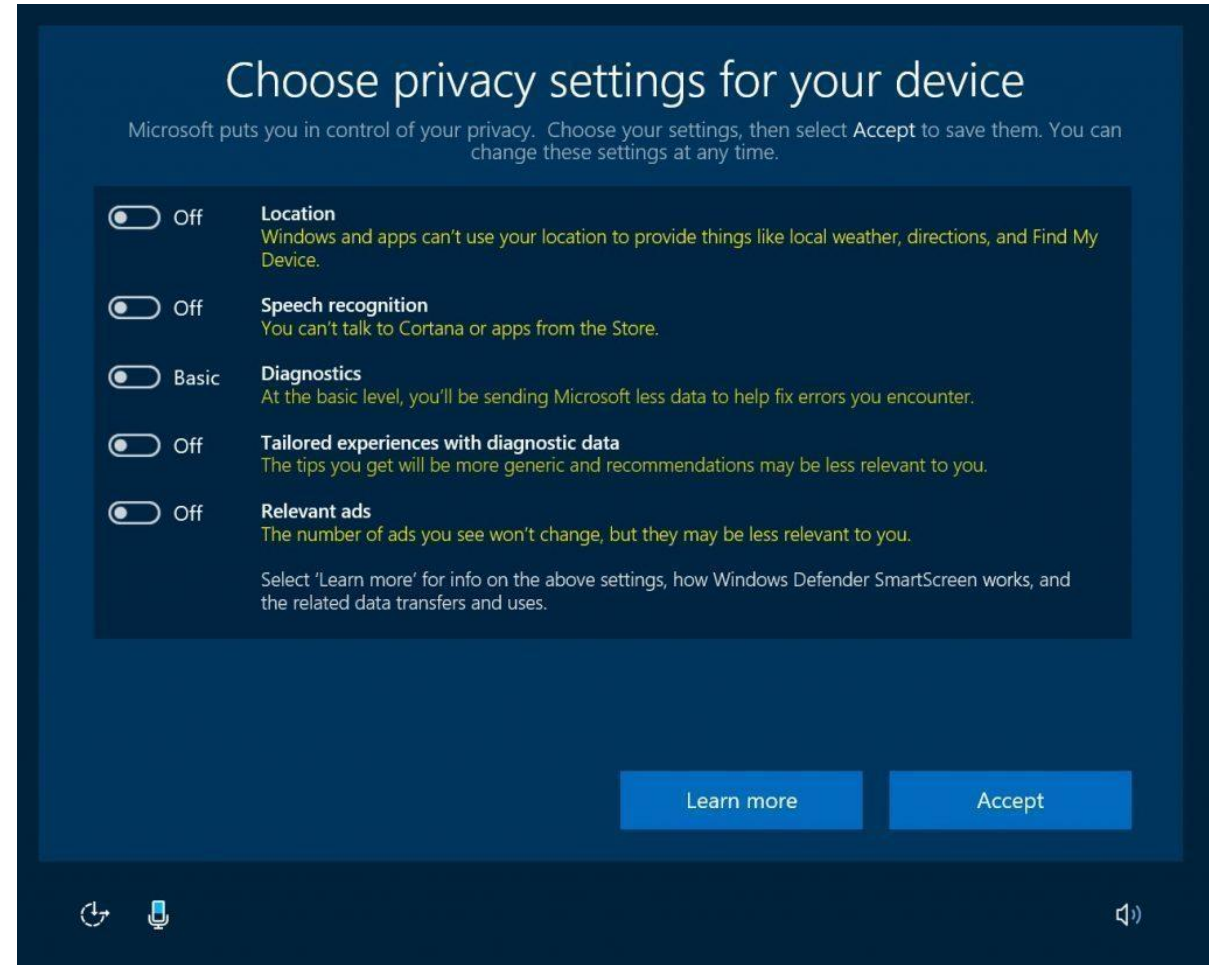

Participants who have joined the Microsoft Insider Program can preview early builds of Microsoft Windows

Being viewed today is the latest build for the soon to be released “Creators Update”

CREATORS UPDATE

Privacy Dashboard

The launch of Windows 10 was marred by two major controversies: the heavy-handed, downright nasty forced-upgrade push, and deep-seated privacy concerns. Microsoft's aggressive user migration ended when the free-upgrade offer expired, and the Windows 10 Creators Update addresses privacy concerns. The simplified dashboard replaces the Express Update and Custom options when you first install Windows. It allows you to pick and choose, but eliminates the intermediary option. You either have "minimal" or "full" access to your PC.

Windows 10

Here's a short summary of the new front-end improvements as we know them today:

Microsoft Edge updates, specifically with regards to tab management

Tiles in the Start menu can now be placed into folders

Scaling, snipping, and sharing improvements

Suggested Cortana commands as you type

New Controls in Settings, Apps and Gaming have been added

Blue-light controls in Settings

On-demand Windows Refresh in Windows Defender

Narrator upgrades

Microsoft Edge upgrades
