Enabling Sandbox Mode in Windows Defender

- For now, Windows Defender running on Windows 10, version 1703 (also known as the Creators Update) or later, support the sandbox feature, which is not enabled by default, but you can turn the feature on by running following command on your system:

- Open Start and Search for "CMD" or "Command Prompt"

- Right Click on it and select "Run as administrator.

- "Type: "setx /M MP_FORCE_USE_SANDBOX 1" and then press ENTER

- Then restart your computer, that's it

Windows October 2018 Update (Version 1809) Timeline

- October 2, 2018: Windows 10 Version 1809 released to the general masses.

- October 6, 2018: Microsoft paused the rollout of 10 October 2018 Update for all users as they investigate isolated reports of users missing some files after updating.

- Update October 8, 2018: This guide has been received to include new changes, and to remove those features and improvements that won't make it to the final version, such as Sets, rename group of tabs you set aside in Microsoft Edge, Block suspicious behavior in Windows Security, and others.

Windows October 2018 Update (Version 1809) Timeline

• Update October 9, 2018: Microsoft confirms that the missing files after the upgrade problem has been fixed, but it'll be testing the patch with participants of Windows Insider Program before re-releasing the October 2018 Update to the public. If you already updated to version 1809, the latest cumulative update also contains the fixes.

• Update October 16, 2018: Microsoft is now making available update KB4464455 with various fixes bumping the version number to build 17763.104. Although the company is fixing a number of issues, including problems with Task Manager, driver compatibility, and conflicts with third-party antivirus solution, it's unclear when the October 2018 Update will re-release again.

Windows October 2018 Update (Version 1809) Timeline

- Update October 30, 2018: Windows 10 build 17763.107 releases to fix known problem with File Explorer extracting content from a .zip folder, but it seems that feature update is still not ready for the masses.
