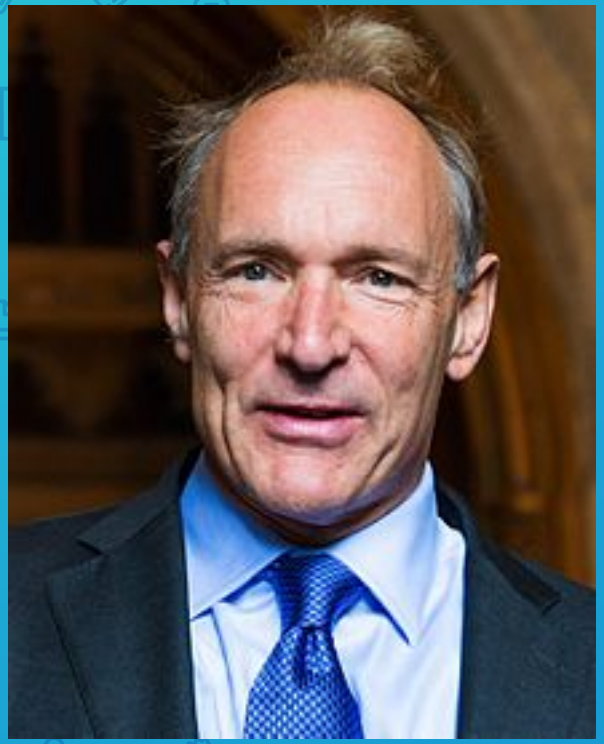
Internet born on October 29, 1969 at UCLA

On the evening of Oct. 29, 1969, a student at the University of California, Los Angeles, sent the first message over the ARPANET — the forerunner of the internet — with just two letters: “Lo.”

The system then crashed. The student, Charley Kline, had tried to type “Login.” It worked on the second try.



Sir Tim Berners-Lee made a proposal for an information management system on 12 March 1989, and he implemented the first successful communication between a Hypertext Transfer Protocol (HTTP) client and server via the internet in mid-November the same year.

Pluto TV keeps adding more & more channels. They just added 9 more in the past week. The channels are free & so is the service. If you have a SmartTV, a Roku, FireStick, or another streaming device, just add the app to your device. If you have an iPhone, iPad, or Android device, add the PlutoTV app. If you have none of those, just go to pluto.tv in your browser & watch many TV channels & many movies for free. http://pluto.tv/

Buying My New Chromebook

Hewie Poplock • July 24, 2019

Do we get her a new Chromebook or get me a more state-of-the-art Chromebook and give Robin the Acer? My wants included some specific items that run the costs up. I want a minimum of 4GB of RAM, but desire 8GB. I want a minimum of 64GB of storage but prefer 128GB or more. I want a backlit keyboard, a touch screen, an HDMI port, some USB ports, a 13-inch screen or less, 1920×1080 screen resolution, and the screen to fold back into a tablet. Oh, and I want the price to be reasonable. Since there are no models that fit my demands, I had to search for the closest fit.

Create Flyers & Posters Quickly & Easily

Hewie Poplock • June 5, 2019

Every organization, whether it is a volunteer group or a commercial one, needs an artistic person to create flyers and posters to promote an event or the organization itself. Previously, there was at least one member of a group or a company employee who was given the task and perhaps it was their only job. Times have changed. Getting volunteers to do anything is a chore. In the business world, creativity becomes part of 1 person's job and may not be related to the rest of that person's duties. Creativity…

Web Browser: A web browser, or simply "browser," is an application used to access and view websites.

Smile !

Early web browsers, such as Mosaic and Netscape Navigator, were simple applications that rendered HTML, processed form input, and supported bookmarks.

As websites have evolved, so have web browser requirements.

Today's browsers support

- HTML (such as XHTML and HTML 5)
- dynamic JavaScript
- encryption used by secure websites
- More

Browser compatibility issues can be a problem. Since browsers use different rendering engines, websites may not appear the same across multiple browsers.

The primary function of a web browser is to render HTML, the code used to design or "mark up" webpages.

The Ultimate Cord Cutter's Guide

Ready to ditch cable TV? There are a lot of things to consider before you become a full-time cord cutter. Here are the streaming services and devices you'll need to get started.

Cable TV was once the ultimate entertainment necessity. The over-the-air days of VHF/UHF television signals couldn't keep up with voracious viewers who needed more, more, more channels. Having a cable directly pumping all that content into your home became the norm, and the cable providers—which likely provide your high-speed broadband internet access as well—knew they had you on the hook.

But cable providers didn't factor in that the internet they provide would become their worst enemy. Services like Netflix, Hulu, and Amazon Video are the most well-known names in what's become known as "cord cutting"—doing away with pay TV to get all your "television" programming via internet streaming services (or, in some cases, over the airwaves). Cord cutting means no more paying a huge monthly fee for thousands of hours of TV you don't watch (in theory). Instead, you pay individual services for a la carte programming. It's a lot like paying for just what you watch. Almost.

According to eMarketer, pay TV will have about 72.7 million subscribers in the US by 2023—down from 100.5 million in 2015. In Q2 2019 alone, pay-TV providers lost 1.53 million customers, Leichtman Research says.

What's ironic is, pay-TV providers don't always lose those customers entirely, because more are also ISPs. Companies like Comcast, Charter, and Altice are weathering the pay-TV subscriber loss easily because people need them for broadband. Cord cutters need a hefty internet pipe to get the same quality of TV programming over the internet. Without

Ready to ditch cable TV? There are a lot of things to consider before you become a full-time cord cutter. Here are the streaming services and devices you'll need to get started.

Cable TV was once the ultimate entertainment necessity. The over-the-air days of VHF/UHF television signals couldn't keep up with voracious viewers who needed more, more, more channels. Having a cable directly pumping all that content into your home became the norm, and the cable providers—which likely provide your high-speed broadband internet access as well—knew they had you on the hook.

But cable providers didn't factor in that the internet they provide would become their worst enemy. Services like Netflix, Hulu, and Amazon Video are the most well-known names in what's become known as "cord cutting"—doing away with

Cookies

- Very small text files placed on your computer by a web server
- Not all websites place cookies
- Web server doesn't have to repeatedly request this information, potentially slowing download time.

What does a cookie look like?

It will usually be named something like abc@example.com.txt. If you were to open one of these files, it would just look like some random numbers.

HMP1 1 example.com/ 0 4058205869 384749284 403847430 3449083948 *

The strings of numbers are codes which are only meaningful to the software that generated it. Usually it is little more than a unique identifying string, although sometimes they are used for data-storage.

Either way, there is usually nothing meaningful to find when viewing a cookie file.

Cookies store personal registration data

- And so on

Cookies make it easy for web servers to personalize information to fit your specific needs and preferences when you're visiting a web site.

Portable Browsers

Why Use a Portable Web Browser?

- Your school or office does not allow you to install browser extensions.
- You like using a niche browser that’s not typically available on public machines.
- Portable browsers will still work on all machines which do not allow you to install your own software.

Warning

- Avoid the Chromium Portable Web Browser. It hasn’t been updated since July 2017 and runs on Chromium version 61. No further updates are planned.

- Older browsers are notorious for being security nightmares. If you run a browser that’s several years old, you’re asking for trouble.
