

Audio Books

by Hewie Poplock

“Audiobooks are for people who hate reading and for those of us who love reading.”

- MATTHEW RUBERY, THE UNTOLD HISTORY OF THE TALKING BOOK

Thomas Edison created the first spoken word phonograph record in 1877.

He predicted technology might one day allow books to be listened to “with great profit and amusement by the lady or gentleman whose eyes and hands may be otherwise employed.”

1932 - The American Foundation for the Blind began creating books on vinyl records for war-blinded soldiers and blind civilians who couldn't read braille.

1952 - Caedmon Records became the first company dedicated to selling spoken word records to the public.

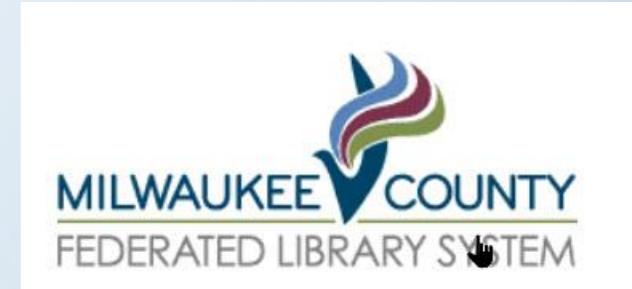

The evolution of the spoken book mirrors innovations in the music industry:

- Books on tape replaced vinyl audiobooks
- Streaming superseded compact discs
- Smartphones are replacing all else

As the audiobook industry flourishes, so is the number of ways you can listen to audiobooks with apps for smartphones, iPads, desktops and Kindles from Amazon, Google and Apple — everyone's competing for a chunk of the thriving sector.

Most audiobooks are available to listen to on your smartphone, tablet, smartwatch and desktop or laptop — how to listen to audiobooks depends mostly on which device you have and your access to apps on it. Both Apple and Android devices will allow you to access virtually every audiobook app.

- Kindle Devices with Fire OS 4 or higher (this does not include paperwhite)

Scribd vs. Audible

Scribd vs. Audible Summary

- Content: Audible and Scribd both offer an extensive library to their listeners, but Audible is the clear winner here because it offers basically every book (for a price). If you are determined to listen to a specific book that has just hit the shelves, Audible is probably right for you. If you are looking for more than audiobooks (like magazines and research papers), then Scribd is right for you.
- Download Ownership: Audible is better if you want to keep your library forever. Scribd works more like Netflix, once you cancel your subscription, you can no longer access the content.
- Compatibility: Both services work on most smartphones, which is what most people will use anyway. If we had to pick a winner, it would be Audible, but we doubt that's a major factor for most users.
- Price: If price is the major factor, Scribd is definitely cheaper. Like most services these days, both Scribd and Audible offer free trial periods for newcomers to test out their products.

Chirp

The main promotional banner features the text: 'NO SUBSCRIPTION FEES' in red, 'Popular audiobooks up to 95% off.' in large bold black font, and a sub-headline: 'Chirp is a free audiobook service that brings you amazing limited-time deals on popular audiobooks, including New York Times bestsellers.' Below this is the tagline 'Spend less, listen more.' To the right of the text is an image of a smiling woman with curly hair wearing headphones and holding a smartphone, with decorative starburst graphics around her.

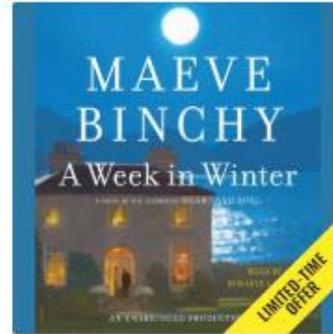

Below the banner is a section titled 'HOW CHIRP WORKS' with a horizontal line above it. It contains four steps, each with an icon and a description:

-  Create your free account and tell us what types of audiobooks you enjoy.
